

NASP seeks partners to co-deliver regional development programmes to help communities recover from COVID

Introduction: The National Academy for Social Prescribing is working with partners to develop a new regional Thriving Communities development programme to help local voluntary, community and social enterprise (VCFSE) groups provide innovative support for communities most impacted by COVID across the South East of England. This will help social prescribing link workers to connect people most impacted by COVID to innovative local community support.

Our partners include Natural England, Sport England, Money and Pensions Service, NHS England and Improvement, Arts Council England and NHS Charities Together, who will be working with NASP to form regional support teams, helping local VCFSE groups to form strategic partnerships across sectors.

The brief: NASP seeks a regional partner to help us deliver the above programme across the South East of England. The new Thriving Communities programme will be launched nationally in early November 2020 and will run to end of July 2021. The work will include co-developing and co-delivering the regional programme throughout this period. We need a regional partner to be in place by the launch in early November.

Key deliverables:

The successful regional partner will provide a named full-time (or equivalent) Regional Lead, who will lead this work on behalf of the provider organisation. The Regional Lead will report to the Head of Partnerships at NASP and will deliver the following:

- Co-develop the regional development programme within your region with partners within the regional team. There will be a national framework, summarising the different elements of the programme. Your role will be to translate this at a regional level into practical delivery.
- Ensure effective delivery of the Thriving Communities regional development programme within your region, coordinating the work of our regional partners.
- Provide development support for local VCFSE groups within your region, who want to develop their activities for communities most impacted by COVID. Your support will help local VCFSE groups make build strategic partnerships with local commissioners, local infrastructure agencies and partners from different sectors.
- Ensure that the programme works inclusively with all communities impacted by COVID, including Black, Asian and Minority Ethnic communities.
- Facilitate regular catch-ups with members of the regional team, promoting action and effective support for people involved in the programme. Help the team to identify, manage risks and manage resources, including regional budgets.
- Promote the regional development programme and the work of local VCFSE projects in helping communities to recover from COVID.
- Work with partners to promote new funding opportunities for local VCFSE groups/ organisations.
- Work with partners to establish effective evaluation for the regional development programme, including who benefits, how they benefit and what impact the programme makes.

NASP seeks partners to co-deliver regional development programmes to help communities recover from COVID

- Work with existing social prescribing regional networks and other networks to create an effective regional steering group for the regional development programme, which includes community leaders, local VCFSE projects, development agencies, local authorities, social prescribing leaders and partners from other sectors, such as the arts, environment, sport and others.

Person Specification for the Regional Lead role:

- Energetic self-starter who can demonstrate how they have worked proactively to support local VCFSE groups and organisations.
- Excellent relationship builder, able to build trusting long-term relationships with leaders across local systems, including with people most impacted by COVID.
- Demonstrates practical commitment to reducing health inequalities and working inclusively with those communities most impacted by COVID, including BAME communities.
- Committed to promoting social prescribing and enabling link workers to connect people to community support for financial wellbeing, nature, arts and to help people be physically active.
- Strong connections with local VCFSE infrastructure agencies, knowledge of the VCFSE sector and understanding of the pressures that local VCFSE groups face, especially under COVID, where resources have been stretched.
- Able to nurture community leaders, standing alongside communities most impacted by COVID, support them to get their voices heard and help them create effective local community support.
- Great planner, able to organise and deliver the support programme with partners, identify risks and manage them together.
- Understanding of the health landscape within the region and the ability to build relationships with the key NHS partners locally.
- Excellent communicator, able to raise the profile of social prescribing with the public and key stakeholders, alongside local community projects and partners.
- Systematic thinker – able to work with partners to create an effective evaluation framework for the programme.
- Good knowledge of the region they will be working in.
